

National Planning Framework 4: Call for Ideas

Heads of Planning Scotland (HOPS) Response

Heads of Planning Scotland (HOPS) is the representative organisation for Scotland's local authorities, national park authorities and strategic development planning authorities

The NPF4 Call for Ideas sought input on future priorities. HOPS members discussed and reviewed many of the current and future issues to inform these. Given the wide ranging nature of issues and resources available within HOPS (in the context of other Planning implementation workstreams) we felt that these be best covered by responses from individual member authorities, focussing on any specific themes where a coordinated response would be beneficial. A response has therefore been submitted to the Housing Technical Paper to reflect the work undertaken through HOPS over the last 2-3 years on Housing.

Suggestions for national developments are geographic in nature and therefore it would not be within the remit of HOPS to provide specific comment on this aspect.
